Dental Health Professional Shortage Areas (HPSAs)

Dental Health Professional Shortage Area (HPSA) designations are used to identify areas and population groups within the United States that are experiencing a shortage of dental health professionals. A Dental HPSA is a geographic area, population, or facility with a shortage of dental providers and services. The Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) and State Primary Care Offices (PCOs) work together using public, private, and state-provided data to determine when such a shortage qualifies for designation as a Dental HPSA.

Role of Office of Oral Health

MSDH supports the development and implementation of innovative programs that address oral health workforce needs in Dental HPSAs. The program has six primary focus areas:

- Expand and/or establish oral health services and facilities in dental HPSAs.
- Placement and support of dental students, dental residents, and advanced dentistry trainees in rural communities.
- Coordinate with local agencies within the state to foster programs that promote children going into oral health stream or health science professions.
- Augment state dental office to coordinate oral health and access issues in the state.
- Develop dental workforce programs designed to address risks factors common to childhood obesity and dental caries.
- Develop dental workforce programs designed to address opioid abuse.
