Dental Health Professional Shortage Areas (HPSAs)

Dental Health Professional Shortage Area (HPSA) designations are used to identify areas and population groups within the United States that are experiencing a shortage of dental health professionals. The primary factor used to determine a Dental HPSA designation is the number of dental health professionals relative to the population with consideration of high need. Federal regulations stipulate that, in order to be considered as having a shortage of providers, an area must have a population-to-provider ratio of a certain threshold. For dental care, the population to provider ratio must be at least 5,000 to 1 (4,000 to 1 if there are unusually high needs in the community).

Role of Office of Oral Health

We support states in developing and implementing innovative programs that address oral health workforce needs in Dental Health Professional Shortage Areas (HPSA). The program has three primary focus areas:

- Supporting oral health providers practicing in advanced roles.
- Community-based prevention services.
- Helping dentists who participate in the Medicaid program to enhance their capacity.

Mississippi Dental Care Safety-Net Providers

A variety of health care service delivery models and federal/state resources can help communities improve access to dental care for their populations. Safety Net Dental providers organize and deliver a significant level of health care and other related services to uninsured, Medicaid, and other vulnerable populations. There are four types of Safety Net dental providers:

- Federally Qualified Health Centers
- Department of Health Consultants
- Rural Health Clinics
- Reduced Fee Clinics - UMMC School of Dentistry
